Product Recall Management
for Manufacturers

RAPID PRODUCT RECALL SOLUTION FOR MANUFACTURERS

As a manufacturer, you have unique requirements when handling Product Recalls in the supply chain.

Being able to recall product in a timely manner is critical in your operations where product may already be in supply chain and being used by consumers. Recalled product may be inside your four walls, in customers locations, or it may be in the hands of a consumer.

The sheer volume of your product being produced means that the impacted product could be anywhere and you need to know where and fast.

There are three operations goals when initiating a product recall. Finding the product is one goal. The second goal is getting the product out of supply chain. Finally, replacing and replenishing that product so your customers receive the least amount of impact it.

In the dynamic realm of manufacturing, product recalls can consume massive amounts of time, taking you away from your daily business. You need a solution that allows you to quickly and effectively communicate the recall, obtain all the needed information from your supply chain to see how you are impacted, and then get back to work.

Product Recall Manager Fills Out a simple form to initiate the recall

Once you decide to recall product from your supply chain, Share-ify RECALL helps you with tools to communicate and collect information quickly from your supply chain with a target goal of recalling product and confirming inventories in under two (2) hours.

Whether you need to contact your own operations or your business customers, Share-ify RECALL allows you to quickly construct a distribution list wherein you can send information to the population of contacts and ask to receive information in return as to whether the location or party is impacted.

The recipient may be called and / or emailed and is prompted to complete the "Certificate of Destruction." This auditable document is available online for completion and guides the user to say whether or not they have product, and if so, how much. It tells them what to do with the product if they have it and asks for a witnesses' name alongside the user actually handling the recall procedures.

Communication to the recipients can include pictures, best practice guides and event specific information. All of this becomes available to the user recipient.

Start reducing the time and stress involved in managing recalls today! Schedule a demo at service@share-ify.com.